Fencing

FENCING is undoubtedly one of today's most exciting sports. Its centuries-old traditions, its unique challenge to mind and body have made Fencing the favorite of spirited men and women everywhere.

To teach this fascinating sport in the best way possible, the Rohdes Academy was modeled after the Fencing Academies of the past. As a result the Rohdes Academy is a school where classic Fencing methods are taught by a master of his art. And as Maitre D'Armes, Frederick Rohdes gives you the expert instruction you need to help you start enjoying all the excitement of Fencing right away.

Whether you seek the poise and keen body coordination Fencing helps develop, or the technical perfection, speed and tactical skill for competition, the Rohdes Academy has a program specifically designed to your needs.

Frederick Rohdes

a few background notes.

Ballet and Fencing classes at the Rohdes Academy are conducted under the supervision of the Ballet Master and Maitre D'Armes, Frederick Rohdes. Mr. Rohdes has had many years of intensive training and teaching experience in both of these fields.

Added to his long record as an outstanding swordsman of the first rank, is the recognition he has gained as one of the finest instructors of the art of Fencing in the United States.

Mr. Rohdes' ability as a teacher and creator of ballet artists is the result of his intensive study with the Old Masters of the Ballet; including Albertieri, Mordkin, Balm and Fokine—and his vast experience on the stage. He has traveled extensively with his own Ballet group on the Continent, in Canada and throughout the United States. He was associated with the Metropolitan Opera Ballet as soloist for ten years, also the Fokine, Jakovleff, and Ileana Leonidoff Ballet Companies.
